

Product Engineer

Job Description

Radio Design are world leaders in the design and manufacture of products for the commercial wireless infrastructure market. Products include tower mounted amplifiers, filters, combiners and other antenna-line devices. The company is experiencing significant growth and is looking to recruit a high quality Product Engineer working with the Production Engineering department.

The candidate ideally will be educated to Degree or HND/HNC level.

Internal applicants will be considered

Have proven skills in the key areas below

Role:

- Leading New Product Introductions, transferring products from design into volume production
- Reviewing product build and unit performance at NPI and volume production
- Driving continuous improvements
- Root cause analysis and corrective actions on defects
- Mentoring technicians and operators

Essential:

- RF knowledge, preferred in passive mechanical filters
- Experience with Electronic or Electrical products in design or manufacture
- Microsoft office, Excel an extensive knowledge is required
- Good engineering background in hand assembly manufacturing
- Experience of RF test systems and automated test
- Interpret and generate engineering drawings and specifications for manufacturing
- Able to lead cross functional teams in NPI and continuous improvements
- Good understanding of configuration control
- Excellent written and oral communication skills, including fluency in English

Desirable:

- At least 3 years experience in a manufacturing or design environment
- 6 Sigma Green Belt
- Lean manufacturing
- Experience of ERP and PLM/PDM systems
- Experience of Process Flows and TAKT time analysis

Other responsibilities include:

- Working under the direction of the Production Engineering Manager
- Occasional business travel to UK and other countries

Salary:

Radio Design offers a competitive package

Closing Date:

Open until filled.

Contact:

patrick.geraghty@radiodesign.eu